

Y. W. C. A. Gets Bulk of Estate Of Mrs. Judson

Branch on Schermerhorn St., in Brooklyn, Chief Beneficiary in Disposition of More Than $1,000,000

Relatives Named in Will

Disposing of an estate valued at more than $1,000,000, the will of Mrs. Harriet Judson, widow of the late Charles N. Judson, of 12 Pierrepont Street, Brooklyn, was filed yesterday for probate with Surrogate George A. Wingate, in Brooklyn. Mrs. Judson died on February 11. The principal beneficiary is the Harriet Judson Branch of the Young Women's Christian Association, in Schermerhorn Street. The association receives four-fifths of the residue of the estate and approximately $10,000 in cash.

The Judson library is bequeathed to the care of the dead woman, Lucy C. Hitchcock and Edith Judson Kiddie. They also receive all personal belongings, silverware, etc. The will stipulates, however, that these belongings shall be distributed in accordance with my wishes as expressed in a memorandum which I shall leave for that purpose.

Bequest Made to Relatives

To the following seven children of the late Mrs. Mary L. Hitchcock, a sister of the deceased, bequests were made:

Dr. Edward Hitchcock, Jr., 38 St. Nicholas Street, Boston, $5,000; Caroline J. Hitchcock, Prof., Va., $7,000; Jane E. Hitchcock, 255 Henry Street, Brooklyn, $7,000; Lucy C. Hitchcock, 12 Pierrepont Street, Brooklyn, $12,000; Dr. John S. Hitchcock, Prof., Va., $5,000; Charles N. Hitchcock, Southbridge, Mass., $5,000; and Albert W. Hitchcock, of Connecticut, $5,000.

The late Linda P. Judson, received $5,000. This amount was given "in appreciation of her loving services and devotion to Linda P. Judson." Mrs. Wright lived at 510 West Ninety-fifth Street. Edith P. Judson Barnes, a cousin, living at 2000 North Avenue, Bridgeport, Conn., received $5,000, and Alvin H. Judson, of New Rochelle, N. Y., another cousin, $5,000.

The Plymouth Congregational Church of Brooklyn received $10,000 as a memorial to her husband, Charles N. Judson, to become and to be a part of the endowment fund of this church.

The executor was left a trust fund of $18,000 to be divided into two equal parts. One of these parts goes to a sister of the deceased, Caroline J. Wood, living in the Nevada apartments, New York City. On her death her share is to be equally divided into two parts for Caroline Wood's daughter, Dorothy, and son, Norman. The will will leave clear with her share to her remaining half of the residue of the estate.

NO one is constrained to buy furniture in the dark. Nor must one wait years to discover the existence of or the lack of quality in a furniture purchase.

While the "test of time" cannot be applied to furniture beforehand, an equally good and dependable test is the strong light of REPUTATION.

A reputation for quality frequently carries an erroneous impression of high prices. A visit here will convince you that our reputation has been earned—and that the other is merely rumor.

Two wills executed by Alfred S. Heidelberg, of the banking firm of Heidelberg, Ickelheimer & Co., who died in Paris on February 1, were filed in the Surrogate's Court yesterday.

The will concerning the French property of Mr. Heidelberg leaves his hotel in Paris in trust for his widow, Mrs. Julie Heidelberg, for life, the rest of the testator's real estate abroad going to his daughter, Mrs. H. Mr. Heidelberg created a trust fund of $150,000, which was to be used for the care of his widow, Mrs. Julie Heidelberg, for life. Upon the death of the life beneficiary, Mrs. Julie Heidelberg, the fund was to be divided equally between his daughter, Mrs. H. C. Phipps, and his son, Mr. H. C. Phipps.

Mrs. Heidelberg left $150,000 to the Mount Sinai Hospital for the endowment of a fund to be known as the Alfred and Julie Heidelberg Fund. To five other institutions the testator left $5,000 each.

Royal Cortisoz Talks On Art of John La Farge

Lecture Delivered on Work of Painter at Metropolitan Museum of Art

The fourth public lecture on the February calendar at the Metropolitan Museum of Art was given yesterday by Royal Cortisoz, a critic of The Tribune, on the art of John La Farge. Before an audience of several hundred, Mr. Cortisoz spoke on the various phases of this renowned American painter's work—his landscapes, his flower paintings, his experiments in form in drawing, his figure paintings of the South Seas and, lastly, his window glass designs and decorative paintings. Various examples of each character were reproduced on the screen.

It was shown throughout by Mr. Cortisoz that La Farge made the firm foundation of La Farge's art in his landscapes he experimented with light when impressionism was comparatively little known, yet he employed no extraordinary style or design, giving attention to truth and tender beauty, the speaker said. He spoke of La Farge as a versatile artist, but one whose versatility was the product of experience.

In calling attention to La Farge's paintings of the South Seas, Mr. Cortisoz made an example of the lack of appreciation of La Farge's art. He declared that they showed an artistic beauty that Gauguin never touched in his similar subjects.

What the public is entitled to see in La Farge is characterized as a monumental quality in the painting of La Farge he illustrated in such paintings as "Christ and Nicodemus" and "The Birth of Christ." One painting which he showed of La Farge's appreciation has been given it is, according to Mr. Cortisoz, the mural in the Church of the Ascension, which he considered worthy of a place along with the masters.

One of 100 Who Start Equal Get Rich by 65

Fifty-four Will Be Dependent on Charity, Says Insurance Woman

Special Dispatch to The Tribune
CHICAGO, Feb. 25.—Only one of a hundred men who start equal at twenty-six with good health and opportunity will be wealthy at sixty-five, Mrs. Laude M. Freeman, of the New York Life Insurance Company, told the American Friends of Women's Colleges at their conference here today.

Fifty-four of the hundred will be dependent on charity in one form or another at the age of sixty-five. The rest will be fairly prosperous and more than five others will be self-supporting. In short, of the hundred only one will be able to care for themselves at the age of sixty-five.

"Statistics show that to be the average," said Mrs. Freeman. "The moral is, 'Save your money! I have saved so that, after thirty years of work, I can retire in comfort!'"

Travel Week Campaign To Open Here March 25

Travel Week—an intensive campaign to attract public to the benefits of travel—will be launched here March 25 by leading steamship lines, railroads, resorts and foreign government tourist bureaus, under the auspices of the Travel Club of America.

The demonstration will include an international travel exposition throughout the week at the Grand Central Station, designed to educate the public that travel is not necessarily a luxury. Public lectures by noted travelers, prize essay contests and a newspaper advertising campaign, emphasizing the advantages of travel, will be other features of the week's celebration.

The movement has been endorsed by President Harding, who wrote Harry Collins, Vice President of the Travel Club of America:

"It is a pleasure to record my interest and approval of the purposes of the Travel Club of America, and particularly of the forthcoming International Travel Exposition. I sincerely hope that the exposition will be most stimulating and helpful results."

It is a truth, that there are few more effective modes of education than travel. Americans have always been great travelers, and travel is one of the reasons why general intelligence is so widely disseminated among them.
